The Christmas Rose

(Helleborus Niger)

A rare and delightful hardy plant blooming outdoors during mild spells all Winter and on into the Spring, often sending its large milk white flowers which are of good substance, up through the snow at Christmas time, forming a connecting link between the last flowers of Autumn and the first ones of Spring.

Customers write us it is such a pleasure to dig away the snow and find these brave flowers nestling there.

Can be planted spring or fall. The plants we send out have a balanced growth of roots and foliage, insuring quick recovery from the transplanting.

Culture

When your plants are first received plunge them in a pail of water for an hour or two, then select a sheltered place in the border or garden where they can remain for several years; dig the place deep and when ready to set out do it just as you would a strawberry plant, that is, spread the roots out well and firm the earth around the roots up to the crown. If it's a dry season water the plants thoroughly several times to insure a good start.

They like moisture but not "wet feet."

They are slow in getting a foothold and resent frequent moving. Left undisturbed your plants will give you an increase of lovely flowers each year.

Legends of the Christmas Rose

Out of pity an angel allowed Adam and Eve to take this one flower (the Rose of Affection) with them when driven out of the Garden of Eden.

In the Alsatian Mountains, where the Christmas Rose is found quite abundant, it is said that this flower first came into bloom at the hour of the birth of the Christ Child and has ever after been known as the Christmas Rose.

The hills are white in robes of snow

But lo, upon the Winter's breast

Amid the gleam of frost and ice

The Christmas Rose uplifts its crest.

It seems the soul of Summer flowers

Grown brave to cheer the Winter hours.

Delphiniums

"Stately Delphiniums"

Nearly everybody loves the exquisite blue shades of the Hardy Delphiniums. We sow the best seed we can buy from the foremost specialists, as well as saving seed from the best of our own plants, with the result that we can assure you of getting some very beautiful varieties if you leave the selection to us or you can do as many of our customers do, come and select them yourself when in bloom as they can be transplanted almost any time. Delphiniums are subject more or less to the "black spot," which often causes them to disappear after 2 or 3 years. The plants we sell are young seedlings, kept as healthy as possible by dusting with tobacco dust from time to time.

Culture

With careful planting, plenty of water for a week or two, a feeding now and then of bone meal, wood ashes, and a complete fertilizer used one after the other during the growing season, dust with tobacco dust several times and you will have good results.

After the first flowers fade, cut the stalk off within 6 or 8 inches of the ground, fertilize with one of the above, and a second growth of flowers will reward your efforts.

The Gladiolus

My interest in the Gladiolus began about 25 years ago. It was my privilege to be one of the organizers of the American Gladiolus Society in Boston May 27, 1910, and had the honor of being elected president for the first 2 or 3 years.

While out of close touch with this flower for 3 or 4 years, their appeal has again won my affection during the past season, so have decided to offer a limited number to our customers.

To select a few out of the hundreds of wonderfully fine varieties now grown is not easy, but the following 15 are in the "Top Notch" class and will give real pleasure to any one growing them.

Select a patch of good garden soil, dig over well, mixing in some Sheep Manure, Bone Meal or a complete fertilizer.

Plant the bulbs in rows or groups to suit your taste. Cover them four inches if soil is heavy, six inches if light.

It takes 12 to 15 weeks for them to come into bloom. Begin planting as soon as ground is open in spring and continue at intervals of two or three weeks to prolong the blooming season.
